WFTC

Compact station WFTC was founded by the Clarkson Electrical Society in 1917. After much preparatory work the station went on the air for the first time on March 27, 1918. At that time it was located on the second floor of the Executive Building. This arrangement proved to be unsuitable for expansion, so the lot of the lot on the Portland State Teachers College campus was acquired. Here new facilities, entirely through the efforts of the students of Clarkson College and Portland State Teachers College, a control studio, a control room, a record library, an edit room, and a large studio to accommodate fifty persons. A new console and microphone have been acquired recently.

As an activity, the station offers excellent opportunities both in entertainment and engineering.

WFTC is a member of the International Broadcasting System, and is owned and operated jointly by Clarkson College and Portland State Teachers College.

Radio station WOCT, Molokai, is operated by the Molokai Beach Radio Club as a non-profit home one hour per night, two nights a week. This year the membership constructed a new studio in Golden Hall, from which all broadcasts to Molokai and vicinity are made.

One thousand a month being operating WFTC's many broadcast consoles.
